MINERS REJECT RADICAL IDEAS AT CONVENTION

One Big Union and Industrial Republic Resolutions Are Defeated.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—Conservative elements in the convention of the United Mine Workers scored overwhelming victories when the delegates took action on the reports of the committee on resolutions.

Proposals regarded as manifesting radical tendencies were rejected outright, in many cases without the formality of discussion.

Among the flatly rejected resolutions were:

The idea of "one big union" of workers.

The affiliation of the mine workers with the international council of trade and industrial unions to develop working class solidarity.

The calling of a convention by American trade unions to form one organization having as its object the abolition of capital and the establishment of a workers' industrial republic in the United States.

Adoption of a resolution condemning the American Legion because of alleged strike-breaking activities of some of its members, vehemently demanded by several delegates, also was defeated. Then the convention adopted a substitute resolution calling upon American Legion officials "to put their house in order."

The convention sidestepped taking a stand on prohibition when the issue was brought up by resolutions favoring light wines and beer. No action was taken on these resolutions, the committee advising such a course with a statement that the prohibition question "is purely a social question," on which each citizen has his own views.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Western woman who recently named golf as a correspondent may find a kindred soul in Mrs. Max E. Kloofain, of Brooklyn, who has brought suit for separation, naming the family motor-car.

According to his wife, Kloofain spent so much time tinkering with the machine that he might as well have been married to it. The supreme court today granted Mrs. Kloofain $15 a week alimony pending trial.
